RAILROAD WRECKS.

Three of a Disastrous Nature Occur in One Day.

Union Pacific and Rock Island Have a Collision.

Two Smashups Reported from the Southern States.

In Each Several were Killed and Many Injured.

A Serious Collision.

KANSAS CITY, October 22 A serious tail-end wreck occurred this morning on the Union Pacific near Armourdale. Nine persons were seriously injured and an engineer fatally. An east-bound freight, which leaves the depot before the Union Pacific passenger train, was delayed near the scene of the accident, and as there was a very heavy fog, the men placed torpedoes on the track to warn the following train. The passenger engineer, warned by the torpedoes, stopped his train, and before a flagman could be sent back to warn, the east bound Rock Island train following, it crashed into the Pullman sleeper of the Union Pacific. The Rock Island engine was completely wrecked and the engineer buried under the debris. The fireman jumped and received severe bruises. The damage is estimated at $60,000.

The following were injured: Pat. Cullen, engineer, will die. John Duff, fireman, fractured jaw and internal injuries, Edward Jackson (colored), both legs broken, J. H. Grayson, Pullman conductor, ankle sprained and bruised; J. F. Kinney, of Chicago, bruised about back; J. A. Lapschis, Lincoln, Neb., knee badly cut; John Driscoll, Ossqua, Kas, leg broken, C. J. Amerie, Springfield, Ills, special agent of the census, burned, back sprained and bruised. The injured were taken to a hospital

Railroad Wreck in Alabama.

BIRMINGHAM, October 22 The passenger train on the Kansas City, Memphis & Birmingham railroad which left here at 9 o'clock last night, went out leaving the sleeper and conductor in the station. Discovering the fact six miles out of town the engineer began backing into Birmingham. At the Thomas furnace, three miles out of the city, the backing train met an outgoing freight and there was a terrible collision. Several passengers in the rear coach were killed and a number wounded. The wounded have been brought to Birmingham. They are Mrs. W. F. Wegner and two children, of Greenville, S. C., badly scalded; T. O. Franklin, a drummer from Nashville, dying; Geo. W. Davis, Shellmound, Tenn, leg broken and otherwise hurt; J. H. Finnell, New Orleans, back hurt; J. A. Taylor, Magnolia, Ark., head mashed, eye knocked out; W. B. Flanigan, Memphis, Tenn, slightly hurt; W. C. Burton, Cordova, Ala., scalded and badly mashed; E. P. Ro[illegible], Lynne, Ala., arm broken, Rev. H. G. Smith, Jasper, ribs broken, dangerously hurt; Dr. Sanford, Hot Springs, Ark., slightly hurt; A. L. Hill, Birmingham, slightly, Hon. B. R. Long, Cordova, bruised; U. D. Townlee and Walter Townlee, of Townlee, Ala., slightly. Four or five dead are reported under the wreck, but the names have not yet been ascertained.

Train Wrecking in Missouri.

LIBERTY, Mo, October 22. Coroner Rothwell held an inquest to day over the remains of Fireman John Wright, who lost his life in the freight wreck yesterday on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad. The verdict returned was that Wright came to his death from the result of injuries received in the wreck caused by some person or persons unknown. The evidence showed that the spikes had been drawn from one rail and the rail displaced, being held out of its proper position by a crowbar. The sheriff of this county, assisted by the railway company's detectives, is on the ground and will attempt to apprehend the wreckers. Engineer Cullen died of his injuries late this afternoon.

George Smith, of this place, while walking on the track of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad near here, surprised four men at work engaged in loosening the rails. He informed the police, but the would-be wreckers had disappeared when they arrived on the ground. They were evidently preparing to shift the rails in order to wreck the Burlington passenger train. Great excitement exists in this locality over the discovery, and it is greatly increased by the result of the coroner's investigation into the C., M & St. P. wreck, which proved that it also was accomplished by train wreckers.

Collision in a Tunnel.

CINCINNATI, October 22 A disastrous collision occurred at 4 40 o'clock this morning on the Cincinnati Southern railway in a tunnel a quarter of a mile north of Sloan's Valley station, between freight and passenger trains. The latter left Cincinnati at 8 p. m. Another passenger train left Cincinnati an hour earlier. Both of these were held at Somerset, Ky., two hours or more on account of a freight wreck south of that place last night. When the track was clear the foremost Cincinnati train started out from Somerset, met and passed safely a north bound freight. Then the other passenger started out.

When the first Cincinnati train passed out the crew of the freight appear to have overlooked the fact that another was to follow, and they pulled out and started northward. Less than a quarter of a mile away they entered the tunnel, one sixth of a mile long, in the most hopeless place train men ever met death. The engines of the two trains dashed into each other, and the cars following. No description of the scene has yet been made; only the bare results telegraphed to officials of the road here. Firemen Gould and Welsh, Brakeman John E Montgomery, Express Messenger Edward Ruffner and a mail agent were killed. Engineer Taylor, of the passenger train, and M. D. Pilot, of the freight, were badly burned. Young Paine, a commercial traveler, had both legs crushed, and has since died.

Fortunately the passenger had not entirely gone into the tunnel when the crash came and the three sleepers which did not leave the track served as a means of escape for the passengers. All of the train except the three sleepers burned. Mail Agent Gayle is living, but is badly burned. [illegible] C. L. Dongen is missing, supposed to have burned to death.

CINCINNATI, October 22. [illegible] John Pimlett died this afternoon, [illegible] ing six victims of the tunnel [illegible] on the Cincinnati Southern road. [illegible] follows: John Pimlett, [illegible] Da[illegible] [illegible] Gould, Ludlow, Ky.; [illegible] Montgomery, Albany, N. Y., Postal Clerk C. L. Doegen, Cincinnati; Express Messenger Ed. P. Ruffner, Cincinnati. The injured are Engineer Pat Taylor, Somerset, Ky., severe; Postal Clerk J. G. Lay, Cincinnati, severe; Baggagemaster John R. Long, Newport, Ky, severe.

A. T. & S. F. Extension.

CHICAGO, October 22 A local paper states that the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway company make the claim that the Atlantic and Pacific land grant was not legally forfeited and that the company will make the effort to have the award restored to the company. Since the Atchison, by the purchase of the St. Louis and San Francisco line, secured absolute control of the Atlantic and Pacific it has been determined to complete the construction of the latter To complete the line, the gap between Sapulpa and Albuquerque, a distance of about 450 miles, must be covered, and an extension must be constructed from Mojave to the Pacific ocean, and it is intended to extend the line from Mojave to San Francisco.

The land grant was originally 12,800 acres of public lands per mile of road constructed in the states and 25,600 acres per mile built in the territories By an act of congress passed July 6th, 1886, the grant in so far as it applied to uncompleted mileage was declared forfeited to the government by the failure of the railroad company to complete its contract.

The New Colorado Railroad

NEW YORK, October 22 The Times says: "James McLain, president of the Colorado, Utah & Pacific railroad, has been in this city for several days, and he has arranged with the Manhattan Trust Co. to get financial aid in the building of his railroad from Denver to Salt Lake City. Mr. McLean will go home prepared to let the contract for the work of construction. The surveys for the new road were completed last August. The projected road will run from Denver to Boulder and cross the Continental Divide at Buchanan's pass, running through Middle Park, thence to Steamboat Springs and over the Goss range to Green river, Utah, Provo, and Salt Lake.

The length of the road from Denver to Salt Lake will be 449 miles, which is 286 miles shorter than the Denver and Rio Grande. The Colorado, Utah and Pacific Railway company claims to have about $20,000,000 back of it, and President McLean says that there will be no hitch in the building of the road. It is not intended to ask any of the counties through which the new line passes for any subsidies. The company will expect some help from the towns. There will be a tunnel 3000 feet long on the projected line, just before Middle Park is reached. This tunnel will go through a high mountain and will be an expensive piece of engineering work.

Base Ball Conference.

NEW YORK, October 22. All appearances indicate that the chances for an amicable settlement of base ball troubles are smaller than ever. The independent feeling which existed among the members of the various conference committees has been strengthened and become a determination to stand by the course already outlined by each committee. It is admitted that the present state of affairs is due to the players in forcing their way into the conference committee of the Players' league. The question asked by all at the meeting was whether the National league would confer with the players, Ward, Hanlon and Irwin. The conference committee of the National league said they would not, and the capitalists of the Players' league said they would not enter into any such conference. During the morning the various committees held a private conference, the result of which could not be ascertained.

After a half hour's session with the National league, the six gentlemen representing the Players' league and players withdrew and adjourned to the Hoffman house. The statements of the National league and Association people that they would not confer with the players are said to have been adhered to, and the withdrawal was for a conference between the Players league capitalists and the players as to what steps were next to be taken.

LATER The players again went before the base ball kings, and evidently there was very little harmony in the conference room.

On a Hot Trail.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., October 22 Regarding the wreck on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad yesterday morning, an official of that road said today: "Several men in that section have been disgruntled ever since the road was built about the damages which they thought they ought to have Several times within the last year obstructions have been placed on the track in that vicinity and we have narrowly escaped wrecks. Some weeks ago several young men of the vicinity, returning from Excelsior Springs, were ejected from the Excelsior Springs train for being drunk and disorderly and raising a row on the train. They swore vengeance. We have our suspicions as to who the wreckers were and the detectives are on a hot trail."

Silver in Wisconsin.

WEST SUPERIOR, Wis, October 22 Much excitement has been precipitated over the finding of a vein of silver about two miles from Fond du Lac. A number of Superior people have become interested in a scheme to develop the mine. The land on which the vein was discovered is situated on an island owned by J V. Scoville A party of Duluth and Superior speculators, with two experienced explorers, left to day to examine the locality and make further tests of the quality and extent of the vein. A sample taken from the island by Scoville has been examined by experts and pronounced a good grade of silver

GALESBURG, October 22 Speaker Reed made a short speech at the depot this morning to a large audience. He upheld strongly the policy of the republican party and was loudly cheered

Governor Hill in Ohio.

WOOSTER, Ohio, October 22 Governor Hill left Canton for Wooster this morning, arriving at the latter place at noon. Governor Campbell, who was expected to be present, telegraphed that legislative complications prevented his attendance. Governor Hill addressed a monster open air mass meeting of 8000 people this afternoon. He was introduced by Judge Critchfield, who said no political gathering in this congressional district had ever equalled the present [illegible]

DEMOCRATIC RALLY.

The Unterrified Hold their Big Rally of the Campaign.

A Fair Audience Listen to Speeches for three Hours.

Judge Yeaman, Rogers, Coy and O'Donnell the Speakers.

Their Talk Tempered to Suit the Banner Republican County.

The democrats had their only and big rally of the campaign in El Paso county last night. The happy event occurred at the opera house in this city, and was attended by about two thirds as many people as usually crowd that building upon the occasion of a negro minstrel performance. The gallery was not thrown open and there were plenty of seats throughout the body of the house, which, by the way, was abominably cold and disagreeable. The meeting was characterized by its great length, lasting until 11 o'clock.

Promptly at 8 o'clock the speakers of the evening filed upon the stage. They were Judge Yeaman, candidate for governor, Judge Platt Rogers, candidate for lieutenant governor; T. J. O'Donnell, candidate for congress, Prof. N. B. Coy, candidate for superintendent of public instruction. Dr. Wm. M. Strickler, chairman of the democratic county central committee, presided and introduced the speakers The doctor told an anecdote upon introducing each speaker that had a particular application. Seated upon the stage with the speakers were numerous luminaries of the democracy in El Paso county. Chief among them was Uncle David McShane, the original old Jeffersonian democrat in El Paso, E. P. McElroy of Husted, J. W. Green of Manitou and E C. Bartlett of Colorado Springs, candidates for the legislature, M A. Leddy of Manitou, member of the state central committee, A. L Lawton of Colorado Springs, W. L Swift of Colorado City, ex Postmaster R A. Meier, and others.

During the evening the Centennial State band discoursed sweet music and also played upon the streets to help draw a crowd before the opening. It has been claimed that all the candidates upon the democratic ticket are orators, and certainly all of those present last night are good speakers. The first speaker introduced was Prof. N. B. Coy, of Jefferson county, candidate for superintendent of public instruction.

Mr. Coy is of slight built, but has a pleasant voice. He began by speaking of his first introduction to Colorado Springs as a seeker for health in 1876. He had found the climate for health and is now here -- a matter of choice and not by constraint. He is amazed at the growth of the city and throughout the state. The lesson that he has learned by thus traveling about the state is that this is an immense territory, that Denver is the center of a great territory, that Colorado Springs and other representative towns are each the center of a great territory. He is amazed at the growth of our churches, our schools, of many things, but in this great commonwealth, he would ask, are we not unworthy of ourselves politically? Are we not in a bad way? Has there not been a lapse in that spirit that created the republic of the United States. Because of the past does it signify that the people are not in favor of good government. By no means, he thought; but the people will show their sympathy with good government by supporting honest efforts in that direction The speakers were here as candidates to be inspected. He asked that they be inspected, and also the methods which put them before the public. If there is anything to inspire confidence in them, why not vote accordingly? The speaker made a glowing apostrophe to the state, which might fall by negligence of its guardians—the people. He said that he was a candidate for one of the minor offices, but one that was of great importance Fifteen out of the 20 years that he had been able to work had been given to public school work as a teacher or supervisor. If it pleases the voters to return him to a work that will be pleasing and congenial he will give his best efforts to the duties of the office. He will protest against sales of school lands, that seem to have been made for the speculator. He would never be in favor of a great school fund that would be a menace. An income could be obtained through the lands that are increasing in value, and he would be in favor of sales of land not frequent, but judicious The time would come when the schools would have a better influence through the stronger backing of the people. Is not rascality due, he asked, to lack of carefulness on the part of citizenship? Virtue and public spirit is not dead, but capable of rousing itself.

Judge Yeaman, who was introduced by the chairman as a robust specimen of manhood, fostered and developed in southern Colorado, and who was given a cordial outburst of cheering, opened his remarks by commenting on the fact that Coloradoans were recognizable from the intelligence they at all times displayed. Whether they were democrats or whether they were republicans, they, the nominees of the democratic party, desired to address them upon the political situation in this state. Throughout this entire state the democratic party was in utmost harmony. They had no cliques, no factions, none who would descend from the policy advocated by the democratic state convention, and the policy advocated by the democratic state ticket to the republicans of the state, and to the honest, independent, fair minded republican voter they now appealed. Whether they voted for the republican or for the democratic ticket, and with the latter a change in the management of the affairs of the state, depended the glory or the shame involved in the outcome of the struggle. Democrats were citizens, and they were not going to consider the welfare, interests prosperity and advancement of the state, either as democrats or republicans. [Applause.] They were citizens who would individually and collectively push forward its progress and development. There must be, then, a substantial governmental basis on which to build their future prosperity. Had they had it for the past few years? If not, whose fault was it? Could they charge it to the democratic party, or must it not rather be charged to that party which has had a majority in the state. That was not intended to be, nor was it, a logical reflection on the republican party of the state. It was his [illegible] and a denunciation of [illegible] to put it so, on those [illegible] elevated to power. Had their servants, or those in whom they had imposed their trust, been faithful to the trusts imposed by the people of the state? If not, what was their duty as voters and as republicans? It was to set aside those agents, and not only those agents and supporters, but the clique which had been responsible for the misgovernment [Hear, hear!] Were they not called upon, when they went to the polls, to vote against the so-called republican ticket? The "so called" republican ticket, he said. They had not come here, nor had they gone to other communities, indulging in abuse, because it was not called for, nor was it argument, nor reason. He used the words "so called republican ticket" because those who composed that ticket were simply masquerading as republicans Had they the support of the republicans of Colorado? Were they nominated by a legitimately political, legally organized republican state convention? If they were not so nominated, then it was much easier for those present as republicans to cast aside for the time being the ties which bound them to their party, to assist those who were able and willing to promote an honest administration in the government of the affairs of the state. It was well known to them all that there were delegates at the republican state convention from Arapahoe county which were opposed to what was popularly known as gang methods opposed to the manner in which the affairs of the state of Colorado had been administered. There were 122 men elected directly in opposition to those methods; yet that convention excluded them. What must be the result? Was there any gentleman could say? Futhermore, the republican press of the state of Colorado had, with a singular unanimity, refused to support the ticket there presented And what more? A great many thousands, he might say, of independent, honest republicans in the state had also refused to support the ticket. That being so, what party ties remained? What had they, as republicans, to cast their affections upon? None whatever, and they might absolve from all party adhesion, and he believed they would separate so far as parties were concerned, to cast their allegiance where they knew the best interests of the state of Colorado lay. [Applause] Had that convention of republicans who had nominated the present ticket presented as good a candidate as the gentleman who came from El Paso county, there would have been, he might add, little for the democrats to fight a campaign. Were they willing to absolve party adhesion? Extravagance in the public administration had manifested itself in every quarter, and the treasurers of the state had year after year violated their oaths, and thus become, if they relied on the provisions of the statute, felons in the eye of the law, by appropriating of the people's money $25,000 to $75,000 every year. Year after year pledges had been made by the so called representatives of the republican party that certain things should be done, but they had failed to keep those promises The democrats of the state would pledge them that the Australian ballot system should be introduced and adopted, should they be elected, and their whole endeavor should be, so far as was in their power, to make the state government what it should be, and what was intended government of the people, by the people and for the people. [Applause]

Judge Platt Rogers met with loud applause on being called forward to address the meeting. His clear cut features denoted that he possessed no inconsiderable logical and argumentative talent, which his speech by no means negatived, and in fact he completely swayed the audience at times with the force of his arguments, expounded in clear, ringing tones, which were clearly heard throughout the building.

Judge Rogers, in the course of his lengthy remarks, referred chiefly to the government of state affairs by the republicans, and denounced their actions in scathing terms. They might sink all party considerations, he observed, in the issue before them, because they and he stood upon a common basis in desiring that honesty should prevail in this state; that their money should not be frittered away; that their school lands, given by the government to the children of the present generation and to children yet unborn, should be dealt with fairly; and they should not support the men who were using the republican party as a means by which they might carry on their nefarious aims. There was no honest republican, he maintained, in this state who would support those men that were so guilty, men who had grossly violated their trusts. If there was such a man, then he would support the gang ticket, and that was where he belonged. If they would examine the records of the gentlemen on that platform and those who composed the so called republican ticket, he was assured they would sever all political affiliations for the time being, and act without respect to party by restoring to power those who would have the welfare of the state at heart. There were men who had been charged with grave crimes. They had some of them upon that so called ticket. Were there no crimes existing, no abuses to be remedied, no servants who had been false to their trust? Need he quote them instances? They had been talked about from day to day, and published in the various papers of this state, put upon the breakfast table talked about at dinner and discussed at supper, until every man, woman and child was familiar, in general at least, with those gross abuses It seemed almost as though they were perfectly willing that these gentleman should continue to put their hands into the public purse That was the situation. They became so involved in their private affairs, they became so interested in the development of their material resources, that they felt almost willing to let state affairs run as they would, and to let those men control their affairs and take their money when and where they pleased. It might be that it was as well to care for those men in the halls of legislation as in the penitentiary. [Laughter.] It might be that soft berths were as easy at the state house as in the asylum. Because their acts and conduct could only describe characteristics which were little less than insane insanely vicious in the management of public affairs. They were determined that the people of this state should know something of the conduct of their public servants It was impossible to give them a resume of the interests accruing upon public money. But there were some matters which would show them their official degradation and public affairs to which he should call their attention. Judge Rogers here went into a detailed statement of the meeting of the Seventh general assembly, and the extraordinary sum which had been expended on the building, carpet, desks, tables, stationery, printing and other items, thoroughly ventilating the methods they indulged in. In conclusion, the speaker said the democratic party had the virility of youth behind them, and if those voters would stand by them they would make the democratic party respectable and [illegible] in every county in the state. [Applause] They did not aim to be confined within the narrow [illegible] laid down by those who had preceded them. They did not desire to follow in the train of the party that [illegible] for the Seventh [illegible] [illegible]

Apropos of the late republican primaries in Arapahoe county, the Denver News [illegible] informs its readers that [illegible] chance of ballot reform from the republicans. Would it kindly tell us if [illegible] any chance of ballot reform from [illegible] party? It is only a [illegible] years since a striped [illegible] voted at the Denver democratic primaries. There never has been [illegible] bribery and bulldozing [illegible] there was in the democratic primaries in the spring of 1888. Again, it is a pretty well established fact that the [illegible] that are bought on election day are democratic voters. If there is any corruption on the fourth day of November in Denver it will be because democrats have sold their votes. How can we [illegible] a party, a large proportion of which is willing to sell its votes, to give [illegible] ballot reform?

We devote considerable space in our local columns to the democratic meeting held last evening. There are two reasons for this. In the matter of news we are [illegible] to exclude whatever does not [illegible] our own views, and we are all the [illegible] to extend this courtesy to "our friends, the enemy," as they have not a morning paper of their own. Furthermore, we believe that nothing is to be lost, and much is to be gained by a frank and full discussion of [illegible] of the day. No better argument can be found for republicanism than the record, platform and speeches of the democracy. It speaks well for Colorado, that even its democratic leaders [illegible] good looking men and good [illegible] as appeared at the opera house [illegible] evening. As one of the orators [illegible], paraphrasing a remark originally applied to the union soldiers by southern [illegible], "There are no horns on them." Speaking to an audience comprising many republicans, in an overwhelmingly republican city, the speakers naturally [illegible] to these conditions. [illegible] was carefully avoided, the [illegible] between republican and [illegible] was shown to be a mere trifle, and in general the path was made as smooth and inviting as possible for stray sheep from the republican fold. The chief argument seemed to be that some republican officials in the past have been [illegible] satisfactory; the only alternative is to elect democrats; they will be faithful and honest. The mere statement of this proposition comes very far from a certain proof of it. The democratic candidates [illegible] are interesting speakers, but [illegible] our report nor their speeches will gain them any considerable number of votes from this city.

ASPHALT AND THE UTES.

As a result of the unfortunate lack of a general policy on the part of the United States government towards the Indians, the Utes are at present in an unsettled [illegible], which is satisfactory neither to the natives nor to the whites. According to the terms of the treaty by which the northern part of the tribe was removed [illegible] Colorado, they were to be given [illegible] severalty, but at the present time [illegible] a large reservation in northeastern Utah, while the government is [illegible] to assign them the promised [illegible]. The reservation contains sufficient agricultural land for this purpose, [illegible] large amounts of desert and [illegible] lands. Among the minerals [illegible] are asphalt and the [illegible] of the action of heat [illegible] in nature's laboratory. The [illegible] is a mineral tar and has great [illegible] paving and like purposes. The [illegible] of this country has hitherto been [illegible] from the island of Trinidad, in [illegible] Indies. The Utah product is [illegible] the eastern and southern [illegible] of the reservation and is [illegible] in quantity not quality. [illegible] a deposit of natural wealth has [illegible] to attract the attention of both [illegible] capitalists. For several [illegible] efforts have been made [illegible] of the [illegible] for the success of their efforts to attempt to secure a claim to a share in it.

A bill which passed both houses of congress last winter was justly vetoed by President Harrison. It provided that titles should date back to the time when, even if previous to the opening of the reservation, an attempt was made in good faith to locate the land. How much "good faith" might be attributed to the man who attempts to locate land on an Indian reservation we are unable to say, but the fatal weakness of the bill was in the fact that no evidence from stakes, survey or county records was necessary. After twenty years peaceful possession title might be contested by one who in the early days attempted "in good faith" to locate the land.

Scarcely less objectionable is the bill, recently introduced by Senator Teller, which has already passed the senate. It provides that the only way of securing title to the asphalt beds shall be by public auction to the highest bidder. There is a seeming excuse for this in the fact that the most valuable of these deposits are so well known that there can scarcely be such a thing as right of discovery. But in the case of smaller or less evident deposits it is clearly unjust to overrule the rights of priority which have been so clearly and justly established as a part of mining law. The plan of auction sales is too clearly in favor of the wealthy speculators and monopolists, and the dangers of fraud in such auctions are too well known to commend this bill to the public.

The bill introduced by Congressman Townsend is more simple and more just. It provides for the restoration of the land to public domain and for its location under the present mineral laws of the United States. It might be well, perhaps, to include some special proviso regarding the largest and best known of the veins, but the general principle of the bill is in accordance with law, justice and good sense.

Going Back to Prison.

CHICAGO, October 22. The ex-member of Quantrell's guerillas, Chas. H. Thorne, and his fellow train robber, George Shinn, were started back to California to-night, each heavily ironed and their backs shackled to the seats of the railway coaches in which they were to make the journey. They are the pair arrested a week ago after a period of liberty having succeeded in a daring escape from the California state prison, at San Quentin. Shinn takes his return coolly, but Thorne, who is under sentence for life, seemed broken hearted. Thorne earnestly protested that since his escape he has lived honestly and would have continued so.

ELECTION NOTICE!

Notice is hereby given, that on Tuesday, the 4th day of November next, at the several voting places in the County of El Paso and State of Colorado, a General Election will be held, at which time there will be submitted for adoption or rejection amendments to Article VI. of the Constitution of the State of Colorado, as follows:

Section five of Article six of the Constitution of the State of Colorado shall be amended so as to read as follows:

"SECTION 5. The Supreme court shall consist of three judges, but the General Assembly may, by a vote of two-thirds of the members elected to each house, provide for one or more additional judges, and for that purpose may increase the term of office of the Supreme judges so that the regular term of one judge only shall expire every three years, but the total number of judges shall not exceed six. Whenever the court shall be composed of six judges it may be arranged in two departments, consisting of an equal number of judges, and the business of the court distributed thereto for more speedy determination; and in cases not involving capital punishment, the judges of the department having consideration thereof, if they shall agree, may pronounce the decision of the court; but capital cases, and cases in which the judges of the department having consideration thereof do not agree, shall be determined by the whole court. The arrangement of the court into departments and the distribution of business thereto, shall be by general rules adopted by the court, and the Chief Justice shall, from time to time as provided by such rules, assign the several judges to their respective departments. Until the court shall be composed of six judges, a majority of the judges shall be necessary to form a quorum and pronounce a decision: Provided, That whenever a case is considered by the whole court, and the judges are equally divided in opinion, the judgment of the lower court shall be affirmed."

SEC. 2. Section eighteen of article six of the Constitution of the State of Colorado, shall be amended so as to read as follows:

"SEC. 18. The judges of the Supreme and District courts shall each receive such salary as may be provided by law, and no such judge shall receive any other compensation, perquisite or emolument for or on account of his office, in any form whatever, nor act as attorney or counsellor at law. The General Assembly may, by a vote of two-thirds of the members elected to each house, increase any such salaries to a sum not exceeding seven thousand dollars per annum and make the same applicable to the judges then in office."

SEC. 3. Each elector voting at said election and desirous of voting for or against all the amendments as a whole, shall deposit in the ballot box a ticket whereon shall be printed or written the words: "For the amendments," or the words: "Against the amendments." Any such elector not desirous of voting as aforesaid may express his approval or rejection of any one or more of said amendments as in the other case: Provided, That he shall designate any amendment so approved or rejected by him by number, in the order in which it appears in this act.

SEC. 4. The votes cast for the adoption or rejection of said amendments, or either or any of them, shall be canvassed, and the result determined in the manner provided by the laws of the State for the canvass of votes for representatives in Congress.

EMOCRATIC RALLY.

al assembly; and they invited the st men of each party to help them ace in the legislature those who ld give them an honest and decent -ent. [Applause.]

Thos. J. O'Donnell was next d upon, and his telling remarks. h lasted over an hour, were fre- ly applauded. He devoted his h principally to the Hon. Hosea send's conduct in congress.

alluded at some length to a chal- he had offered to Mr. Townsend to him upon the platform, and explain ction in voting against the free coin- bill which presented to congress. r was the foundation of the pros- y of this state, and the who struck a blow at all- struck at the direct interest very man, woman and child who s a bit of property, or desired to e a living in the state. Ever since beginning of the world silver had d side by side with gold as one of the ey metals; and instead of exchang- commodity for commodity silver had used instead. The free coinage bill been introduced by the democrats, their representative in congress was who had voted against it. He had exceedingly anxious that Mr. send should come before the voters olorado and explain his action in matter. He said that upon the day n that gentleman voted against the coinage bill he deserted the silver ed, pale faced mother of his children the blondine tresses and saluted ks of the harlot. [Laughter and lause] His office was with them night. Instead of that he was in southwestern corner of this state aining that their principal competi- n the wheat trade was India, and ng how long could they compete India in selling wheat in England. ughter.] Further, he said that unless e was a tariff put upon wheat the le in this country would be con- ng Indian wheat, and they had con- ently to put a tariff on wheat to stop foreign competition in this respect. re laughter] Here was an explana- he made to a correspondent of the ver Republican in reference to his e on the free coinage bill: "We don't pose to allow the democrats to run business of this house. We will take he silver bill when we get ready, and when the democrats choose."

hat was his explanation. Had they r supposed that in the state of Colo o a free and unlimited coinage of er was a partisan question? Had y ever been able to detect a piece of nocratic ore from a piece of repub- n ore? [Hear, hear] Now, Mr. nsend was born in Ohio, and in 1865 t to the state of Tennessee, and there ntified himself with the democratic ty, with the result that he was cted to the legislature for that state 1869 and served and acted with the nocratic party absolutely, being for he time chairman of the demo- tic committee in the city Memphis. That man came Colorado in 1879 and immedi- ly changed his politics at the same e that he changed his residence. w, he should like to know upon what at principle he changed his politics. r great reforms of the world had many instances been effected by ge, but he did not think that when y saw a man going from a northern southern state, where he becomes a ocrat, and afterwards coming to orado and changing to join republican ranks, it put the den upon him of explaining the on of those changes. And the peo- of this state had the right to ask and nformed upon what great political es Mr. Townsend had found it neces- to alter his democratic views and ace them by allegiance to the repub- n party. ["Hear, hear."] He also ted to know of Mr. Townsend why voted to unseat nine members who e elected by the honest democrats n southern states, and who were nds to a free and unlimited age of silver? He wanted to know he voted for the federal tion law which the republican lead- refused to support a law aimed at southern people, who were their nds [applause] a people with m their interests were united, and ch was a law aiming to take out of hands of the people of that southern try the selection of their own repre- atives in the federal congress. He ted to know if it were true that elec- s were corruptly carried on in the h by the democrats, as Mr. Townsend that had caused him to vote that bill. Was it true that tions were carried out in the south e same manner when Mr. Townsend d there. If so, why did he not then, an honest man, denounce them, not ing to become a beneficiary under system? ["Hear, hear."] Allud to his nomination, Mr. O'Donnell erved that when he was nominated congress the Denver Republican ed he would be beaten by 10,000 ma- ty. That was a little over three ks ago. This morning the Republi- said there was great danger, or some ger of his being elected [laughter.] ey were afraid and they wanted every ublican to vote against him. There a journal in Colorado Springs, which y probably had never heard of, and had never till recently seen. He did mean the Colorado Springs GAZETTE, ich was a paper every one of them was l acquainted with, but the Republic. e Republic contained an article to the ct that he (Mr. O'Donnell), the nince for congress, was not a modest n, and thought he could do things a at deal better than Mr. Townsend, ing assumed to criticise him without ing into consideration all the things t Mr. Townsend had accomplished l all the bills he had put through the se. The reason that Mr. Townsend not meet him was simply that he did have to. Now he did not know gentleman who wrote that icle, never having the pleasure of introduction, but it was e that he anticipated with fond emo- ns. He had referred to the fact that had asked Mr. Townsend to meet n, and they had seen with what re- t Instead of doing so he had been ay down in one corner of the state cussing the question of the Indian eat competing with our own [laugh-] It did appear to him that a public n should be held responsible his stewardship, and the public Colorado certainly had the right to Mr. Townsend to give them a public planation of his actions. [Applause] ncluding, Mr. O'Donnell remarked t if he was elected to congress he uld work for the interest of this te. He loved Colorado with a first e first even to that of his native te, the state of New Jersey, over ose rugged hills as a boy he d wandered bare-footed, and earned own living. He should go to the use of representatives as their repre- tative not as the representative of y political party and he should try be of some service to them there. lear, hear, and applause.]

This concluded the proceedings of the eting, which quickly dispersed to k a warmer atmosphere than was to found in the opera house.

Fenian Convention.

NEW YORK, October 23. The biennial nvention of the Fenian Brotherhood me to a close at Paterson, N. J., last ght. The session lasted three days. ore than 200 delegates were present, presenting all sections of the United ates. By far the [illegible] important action ken was the unanimous [illegible] The recommendation of the general cretary abolishing the secret oath of e organization. [illegible] all [illegible] tions of the Brotherhood will be open d the public be free to attend all [illegible] ings. In his report the general secretary attributes disruptions and disasters to Irish organizations in the past two years to the fact that men with selfish personal ends had, through misuse of the secrecy clause of the constitution, forced themselves into power. There was no dissenting voice when the resolution was put to a vote

A special committee appointed on the future of the organization, in their report, recommended that the Fenian Brotherhood hereafter be an open organization, that military and naval companies be organized and ninety per cent of receipts may be devoted to this purpose, the companies to be known as Fenian volunteers, and to be held in readiness to assist the United States in case of foreign war. The following council were elected. Geo. Smith, chairman; Captain Driscoll, John Dowling, Francis Rea, B O'Hara, Thomas Sampson, E Whalen, James Barrett, and Roderick J. Ryan. John Murphy was re elected treasurer.

A Crusade Begun.

LAWRENCE, Kans., October 23 The ladies of the local W. C. T. U. held a meeting last night to decide means to counteract the evil of the reopening of the original package houses. A committee was appointed with unlimited authority to take whatever steps might seem advisable to effect the accomplishment of their purposes. One original package house here enjoys much patronage that of Henry Fritzel. There the W. C T. U. committee congregated at 8 30 o'clock this morning, and there they remained all day. They believed that their presence would prevent many from entering the place, who would be ashamed to be seen there by the ladies They spent the day reading psalms and singing hymns, much to the annoyance and disgust of Fritzel.

Higher Wages Demanded

CHICAGO, October 22. A general demand for increased wages is being made by the passenger train men of the Michigan Central, the Lake Shore and nearly all the trunk lines. "The demand is not a local affair, and of course we will not have to deal with it," said the division superintendent of the Lake Shore to a reporter. "If a conference is held; it will take place at Cleveland. The demand for increased wages is not confined to the Lake Shore, but has grown out of a resolution among the passenger train men on a number of lines to try to secure an increase. The employees show no disposition to strike or engage in any protracted controversy over the matter."

Reunion of Veterans.

ARKANSAS CITY, Kas., October 22. The Southwestern Kansas Soldiers' association began its fourth annual reunion here to-day. Fully ten thousand people were on the grounds, every city and county in the southwest being represented. Speeches were made by Senator Ingalls, Governor Geo. W. Steele, of Oklahoma Territory, Hon. W. B. Perkins and State Auditor Tim McCarthy. To-morrow Governor Humphrey, Lew Handback and others will make addresses. The parade of G. A. R. posts, civic and military societies will be the feature of the reunion.

Delayed Its Passage.

COLUMBUS, October 22 The bill which passed the senate yesterday, providing for a non-partisan board of improvements for Cincinnati, to be appointed by the mayor, was read the first time in the house to-day, and an effort made to suspend the rules and make it a law, but the opponents of the measure were able to prevent this course, and the bill went over to to-morrow. There seems to be no doubt that the bill will become a law, either to morrow or next day, when the legislature will adjourn.

A Clean Sweep.

LONDON, October 22 A meeting of the creditors of James H. Field & Co., bankers, recently failed, was held to day. The receiver announced that the total amount received from the assets of the firm was £139. The meeting adopted a suggestion that creditors subscribe a fund, for the purpose of proving their title to £6,000, against which a draft had been drawn and p[illegible] uted for payment in New York, but payment stopped.

This distinction has never before been accorded to a German subject. Emperor William, the king of Saxony, the grand duke of Hesse and several princes will go in a body to Count von Moltke's house to convey the congratulations of the army and navy.

Advance in Express Rates.

A Gladstonian Victory.

Our County Institutions.

The county commissioners yesterday afternoon, accompanied by County Physician Strickler and a GAZETTE reporter, inspected the county poor house and the county jail. The first visit was made to the poor house. This county has no able bodied paupers so the poor house is really a hospital for those persons who are taken sick or are injured in the county and have not the money to pay their way. Every room was visited and not a particle of dirt was visible anywhere. There are eleven inmates at present and all were seemingly happy and looked as if they were well cared for. The building has recently been completely fitted with a steam heating plant, a Mulford heater and radiator in every room, so that the severest cold of winter cannot penetrate it. The grounds are in good order and there is a fine lawn in front. The work is done by a matron and those patients who are sufficiently convalescent to help. A man nurse is employed in addition. Although everything is done for the recovery and comfort of the inmates the expense, compared with that in other counties, is very light on account of the economy of the management.

The jail has twenty six inmates and is not in as good condition as regards cleanliness as the poor house. For a building of its kind it was passably clean however. The prisoners are all in a good state of health and seldom require the services of the physician. They are well supplied with fresh air and tolerably well with light, but in this latter respect the jail might be greatly improved. The plumbing seemed to be in good repair and free from disagreeable odors. The bedding was clean and altogether the condition is considerably improved over what it was two or three months ago. A visit to the kitchen showed food in preparation that was good enough for any one.

The commissioners were on the whole pleased with the condition of the buildings; but decided on some slight changes and repairs that will materially improve the county property.

A Strange Suicide.

One of the most shocking suicides ever known in this city occurred yesterday, and under the circumstances one of the strangest. Thomas Gallagher, aged 31 years, has been employed as a brakeman on the Rock Island road and has been running with Conductor Carrence, his brother in law. Some six weeks ago he was prostrated with typhoid fever and has been very ill since, his life being despaired of. At times he has been slightly delirious, but Tuesday night the fever left him and yesterday was considered by his physician the critical point in the case. About 11 o'clock yesterday morning Father Montanarelli, priest in charge of the Catholic church, called upon the sick man at the residence of his sister, Mrs Carrence, 14 E. Costilla street. He talked with the sick man, making a few pleasant remarks that were answered in the same strain. The priest left the house and Mrs Carrence accompanied him to the door, leaving the sick man alone. She returned in less than three minutes and found that Gallagher had cut his throat from ear to ear. He had turned over, pulled out a drawer in a table near by and taking out a razor committed the act. His death occurred immediately and the coroner upon investigation decided an inquest unnecessary.

There had been nothing in the young man's conduct to show that he contemplated such an act and his physician is satisfied that it was done in a moment of delirium. The family had no knowledge that the razor was in the room and such a thought as the sick man using it never occurred to them. They are greatly distressed at the occurrence and have the sympathy of their friends.

The concert to be given at the opera house next Tuesday evening for the benefit of the Colorado Springs Aid society promises to be a grand success. The ladies hope to have a big house. A Kansas City exchange, in speaking of Mr. Aamold and Louis Elbel, the boy pianist, says: "The performance of A. Aamold, the violinist, was wonderful. Although still very young, he has great command of the technique of his instrument, and his tone on the violin is of rare sweetness and perfection. All who listened to his playing last night were charmed with his performance, and spell bound with the execution of the king of instruments the violin. Louis Elbel, the child pianist, astonished all by his masterly performance, which is beyond description, and has to be heard to be appreciated. The boy's technique and execution is such that he can play whatever he chooses from the whole musical literature.

Persons who have subscribed for course tickets and have received them but have not paid can pay at the door on the evening of the concert. Course tickets can be purchased at the door on the same evening.

Mr. Alexander Salvini, supported by an excellent company in "Don Cæsar de Basan," will be the attraction at the opera house to-morrow evening. A Denver exchange says: "Artistically, Mr. Salvini's Denver engagement has been an unmistakable triumph. Curiosity mainly prompted the people to attend the opening performance a desire to see just how greatly young Salvini differed from his illustrious father. Before the first act had proceeded half way, all thoughts of comparison were banished. They saw an actor in a role totally different from those to which they had been accustomed. They saw a carefully studied performance of a character unique to America, and a play distinctly different from the conventional English melo drama. And not the least thing, they heard the English language pronounced charmingly, for Salvini has not even a touch of the Italian accent. He speaks purer English than two thirds of our native born tragedians.

A grand mass meeting of organized labor has been called at the court house hall for Saturday evening. The circular issued asks that all persons affiliating with labor organizations be present.
